Alex Carmichael, BSIA Technical Director, says: 'Each year the IFSEC Security Industry Awards demonstrate the breadth and depth of innovation in our industry. This year's award winners have developed outstanding products, excelled at providing guarding services, and formed policing partnerships which have made a real difference in communities. I am always impressed by the level of creativity and commitment in our industry and this is very much in evidence in this year's winners, each of whom should be justly proud of their achievements.'

James Blue, Director of Fire & Security at UBM Live, organisers of IFSEC, adds: "These awards are a fantastic opportunity for the security industry to come together and celebrate those who have excelled over the past twelve months. With each successive year, the standard of entry seems to get higher and 2009 has proved no different."

IFSEC Security Industry Awards take place alongside the world's largest annual security event IFSEC. IFSEC 2009 is open from 11-14 May at the NEC Birmingham.
