

The Battle of Mutina (43 BCE)

Today in History - 5 hours 11 min ago

The Battle of Mutina was fought in 43 BCE between Marc Antony and the combined forces of Gaius Vibius Pansa Caetronianus and Aulus Hirtius, who were providing aid to one of Julius Caesar's assassins, Decimus Junius Brutus Albinus. When negotiations between the Roman Senate and Antony broke off a year after Caesar's murder, Antony gathered his legions and marched against Decimus Brutus. Though Hirtius died in the battle, Antony was defeated. Not long after, a truce was formed between whom?

Discuss

Access control goes global

Government Security News - Tue, 04/20/2010 - 17:49

Melissa Jane Kronfeld Article Caption: Touch screen

Tab Systems, Inc., of Naklo, Slovenia is gearing up for a worldwide launch of smarti Guardeon, the company's new biometric unit for access control.

The multi-modal system, which uses facial and voice recognition is set to debut at the 2010 IFSEC Security Industry Awards in England on May 10-12. The awards show will also mark the fifth year in a row that Tab Systems has been listed as a finalist in the best new access control product category.

read more

New power over Ethernet switch weathers the weather

Government Security News - Tue, 04/20/2010 - 17:41

Melissa Jane Kronfeld Article Caption: PoE Switch

ComNet Communications Networks of Danbury, CT, a company that focuses on fiber optic connectivity and communication network solutions, has manufactured a new high capacity managed power over Ethernet (PoE) switch for the marketplace. The eight port Comworx CNGE2FE8MSPoE allows for multicast traffic transmission, redundant network path in the event of a system failure and Virtual Local Area Network (VLANs), providing solutions for scalability, security and network management.

read more

Credentialing and access control confab in Portland, OR, June 7-8

Government Security News - Tue, 04/20/2010 - 17:37

The American Association of Airport Executives will present the Employee Credentialing and Access Control Conference in Portland, OR, on June 7-8.

This day-and-a-half conference will provide an opportunity for key players from government and industry to share interactive and informational sessions related to biometric-based credentialing and access control systems.

read more

CBP Commissioner Bersin Discusses Partnerships Leveraged to Combat Border Violence

US Customs & Border Protection - Tue, 04/20/2010 - 17:04

Testimony of Alan Bersin, Commissioner, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security before the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

Delayed Implementation-Updated Carrier MOU

US Customs & Border Protection - Tue, 04/20/2010 - 17:04